OUR THESIS

01 Ownership, not advice

IN ONE IDEA

Validated models. Real assets. Active ownership.

We identify companies with validated models and real assets, and build long-term value through active ownership – governance, operations, and capital.

Real estate sits at the centre of that approach. It is a real asset we can own and steward directly: property that produces income today, can appreciate over time, and gives a growing company a tangible footprint in a new market.

This paper explains how we think about private equity real estate — the strategies behind it, how value is actually created, and the role real assets play when a company expands internationally.

02 Why real estate

Among private assets, real estate is uniquely tangible — you can see it, improve it, and build a business around it.

01

Real assets, real value

Buildings are tangible and enduring. Value is created through hands-on stewardship, not market timing — the discipline at the heart of active ownership.

02

Income and appreciation

Well-let property pays rent today and can grow in value tomorrow. Two return streams from a single asset, working together over the hold.

03

A foundation for expansion

For a company entering a new market, real estate is more than an investment — it is the physical anchor of a durable local presence.

HOW WE CREATE VALUE

03 Three levers of active ownership

We don't invest passively and wait. Value is built deliberately, through three levers we control directly.

LEVER 01

Governance

We set the structure, discipline and reporting that keep an asset on plan — clear decisions, clear accountability.

LEVER 02

Operations

We improve how the asset performs day to day: occupancy, tenant quality, cost, and the experience of using the space.

LEVER 03

Capital

We fund the right improvements at the right time — renovation, repositioning, expansion — with disciplined use of financing.

> THE THROUGH-LINE
>
> Governance sets direction, operations create performance, and capital makes it possible. Together they turn a building into a better business.

THE SPECTRUM

04 The four core strategies

Real estate spans a spectrum — from stable, income-led assets to ambitious projects that create value through change.

STRATEGY	RISK & RETURN	WHAT IT LOOKS LIKE
Core	LOWER · STEADY	High-quality, fully leased buildings in prime locations. Most of the return is stable rental income.
Core-plus	MODERATE	Solid assets with light upside — a lease to renew or a modest improvement — adding growth on top of income.
Value-add	HIGHER	Under-managed or partly vacant buildings, renovated and repositioned to lift income and value. Where active ownership earns its keep.
Opportunistic	HIGHEST	Ground-up development or major repositioning. The most ambitious — and the most dependent on execution.

INCOME-LED · LOWER RISK

GROWTH-LED · HIGHER RISK

05 Real assets and the soft landing

When a company expands into the United States, real estate does double duty — an investment in its own right, and the ground beneath a new operation.

01

Establish presence

Secure the right location to give the business a credible, lasting footprint.

02

Secure real assets

Own the property rather than rent it, turning a cost into a value-building asset.

03

Build operations

Stand up the local operation with governance and oversight from day one.

04

Scale with governance

Grow deliberately, with the structure and discipline that protect long-term value.

WHY IT MATTERS

Owning the real asset aligns the property with the business it houses — a foundation for a soft landing and durable growth abroad.

WHAT GUIDES US

MISSION

Guide companies expanding internationally with practical, personalized, and secure solutions — creating lasting value through strategic partnerships and active governance.

VISION

To be a global reference in internationalization and business growth, with active governance and a soft landing in the United States.

REFERENCE

06 Key terms, in plain language

Active ownership

Creating value by directly steering an asset — governance, operations and capital — rather than investing passively.

Real assets

Tangible investments such as real estate and infrastructure that produce income and can appreciate.

Core / Value-add / Opportunistic

Labels for how much risk a strategy takes on to pursue return, from stable income to ambitious repositioning.

Occupancy

The share of a building that is leased and paying rent. Higher occupancy means steadier income.

Net operating income (NOI)

Rental income left after the day-to-day costs of running a property.

Repositioning

Improving or re-purposing a building to raise its income and value.

Soft landing

A guided, lower-risk entry into a new market, supported by local structure and assets.

Hold period

How long an asset is owned before it is sold, often several years.
